Investment objective

The Fund is designed to provide capital growth over the longer term in the Base Currency by gaining exposure to international equity markets, predominately by means of index tracking collective investment schemes and/or exchange traded funds. The Fund is ideally suited to investors with a moderate to high risk tolerance (with a high risk tolerance for short-term volatility) and an investment horizon of 5 years or longer.

■ Market commentary

The benign conditions enjoyed by financial markets in the 18 months since the depths of the pandemic were well and truly shattered in the first quarter of 2022, driven by two powerful shocks, both largely unexpected and each with huge consequences globally: Russia's invasion of Ukraine and the Fed's very sharp hawkish shift in policy.

After a short spike down at the time of the invasion, equity markets are back at levels prevailing before the war, while bond yields are well above levels before then. The focus has shifted to the inflationary implications of the war, the surge in commodity prices, damage to supply chains, risk of shortages, and the extent to which central banks will tighten policy to restrain the ensuing, more persistent, inflation.

The persistence and size of the inflationary surge over the past year, further fuelled by the war, and the strength of the economy and the labour market, have convinced the Fed to accelerate its tightening dramatically. On top of the dramatically accelerated rate rises, the Fed also signalled an earlier start to quantitative tightening (QT), possibly as soon as May, when liquidity will begin to be withdrawn from markets as the Fed sells down its huge bond assets.

Developed markets, measured by the MSCI World index, returned 2.7% over the month, with the US and UK returning 3.7% and 2.1% respectively. Emerging markets fell -2.3% in local terms.

Bond markets returned -3.2% in March, as measured by the Bank of America Merrill Lynch Global Broad Market index, with US Treasuries returning -2.9% and US corporate investment grade bonds returning -2.5%.

The next few months are likely to be volatile and uncertain in markets, but as we move through the second half of the year inflation is likely to have peaked, the Fed's tightening well underway and the risks from war diminished. Equity markets have already corrected, in some cases materially, from peak levels and are offering some valuation opportunities on a longer-term perspective. With careful diversification, we believe it is important to ride out the short-term volatility and stay invested for those longer-term opportunities now emerging.

■ Risk warnings and important notes

Collective investments are generally medium to long-term investments. The value of units may go down as well as up and past performance is not necessarily a guide to the future.

Collective investments are traded at ruling prices. Commission and incentives may be paid and, if so, would be included in the overall costs. All performance is calculated on a total return basis, after deduction of all fees and commissions and in US dollar terms. Forward pricing is used.

The Fund invests in other collective investments, which levy their own charges. This could result in a higher fee structure for the Fund.

Fluctuations in the value of the underlying funds, the income from them and changes in interest rates mean that the value of the Fund and any income arising from it may fall, as well as rise, and is not guaranteed.

Deductions of charges and expenses mean that you may not get back the amount you invested.

The fees charged within the Fund and by the managers of the underlying funds are not guaranteed and may change in the future.

Higher risk investments may be subject to sudden and larger falls in value in comparison to other investments. Higher risk investments include, but are not limited to, investments in smaller companies, even in developed markets, investments in emerging markets or single country debt or equity funds and investments in high yield or non-investment grade debt.

Notwithstanding ongoing monitoring of the underlying funds within the Fund, there can be no assurance that the performance of the funds will achieve their stated objectives.

The Fund will contain shares or units in underlying funds that invest internationally. The value of an investor's investment and the income arising from it will therefore be subject to exchange rate fluctuations.

Foreign securities may have additional material risks, depending on the specific risks affecting that country, such as: potential constraints on liquidity and the repatriation of funds; macroeconomic risks; political risks; foreign exchange risks; tax risks; settlement risks; and potential limitations on the availability of market information.

The Fund may contain shares or units in underlying funds that do not permit dealing every day. Investments in such funds will only be realisable on their dealing days. It is not possible to assess the proper market price of these investments other than on the fund's dealing days.

No borrowing will be undertaken by the Fund except for the purpose of meeting short term liquidity requirements. Borrowings will not exceed 10% of the net asset value of the Fund. For such purpose, the securities of the Fund may be pledged. No scrip borrowing will be allowed. The Cell is not permitted to enter into any form of borrowing or loan arrangement with other cells of the Company nor other collective investment schemes of the Manager.

While derivative instruments may be used for hedging purposes, the risk remains that the relevant instrument may not necessarily fully correlate to the investments in the Fund and accordingly not fully reflect changes in the value of the investment, giving rise to potential net losses.

Forward contracts are neither traded on exchanges nor standardised. Principals dealing in these markets are also not required to make markets in the currencies they trade, with the result that these markets may experience periods of illiquidity. Banks and dealers will normally act as principals and usually each transaction is negotiated on an individual basis.

The Manager has the right to close the Fund to new investors, in order to manage it more efficiently, in accordance with its mandate.

Investment in the Fund may not be suitable for all investors. Investors should obtain advice from their financial adviser before proceeding with an investment.

Investors are reminded that any forecasts and/or commentary included in this MDD are not guaranteed to occur, and merely reflect the interpretation of the public information and propriety research available to the Investment Manager at a particular point in time.
